The workshop will highlight the application of open source software in libraries and provide hands-on training to the library and information science professionals of the North-Eastern states of India.

DATE & VENUE

25-27 February, 2020 at Saint Claret College, Ziro, Arunachal Pradesh

ABOUT THE WORKSHOP

The Open Source Software has enriched libraries facilitating digital resource management and library operations management. Libraries are using open source software such as DSpace for digital resources management and KOHA for library management. Documentation Research and Training Centre (DRTC),

Indian Statistical Institute (ISI) Bangalore in collaboration with Saint Claret College, Ziro, Arunachal Pradesh, is organizing a workshop for imparting practical training on DSpace and KOHA.

The purpose of the workshop is to impart practical knowledge to participants on the use of open source tools in libraries. The open source software Dspace and Koha that deals with digital libraries and library management will be introduced and taught with hands-on practice. The workshop will also include lectures by experts to widen the knowledge in related topics of digital libraries and tools to build and manage digital collections. The workshop will look at strengthening libraries in North East India through capacity building in cutting edge areas of library automation and digital collection management.

OBJECTIVES

Objectives of the workshop are:

1. To exchange appropriate skills, information, and experience in Digital libraries and Library management systems.
2. To equip the participants with knowledge of the software DSpace and KOHA.
3. To develop expertise by providing a thorough training, tutorial, demonstration and hands-on practice on open source software (OSS) and their applications in the libraries.
